Analítica

A huge hoard of Almohad silver coins was found in Priego de Cordoba (Spain) some decades ago and is now kept in the Archeological Museum of Cordoba. Among its thousands of pieces there is one, a half dirham, which bears the name of Priego as minting place. After some considerations on the relevance of Priego during the Almohad period, we conclude with a linguistic analysis of the Arabic writing of the name. Our conclusion is that the alternative spellings for Priego reflect the difficulties to reproduce the pre-Arabic name "Pego"
