

Screwball television [: critical perspectives on Gilmore girls /

Diffrient, David Scott (1972-)

Lavery, David (1949-)

Syracuse University Press, 2010

Monografía

<https://rebiunoda.pro.baratznet.cloud:28443/OpacDiscovery/public/catalog/detail/b2FpOmNlbGVicmF0aW9uOmVzLmJhcmF0ei5yZW4vMzY4MDI3NQ>

Título: Screwball television [Recurso electrónico] : critical perspectives on Gilmore girls edited by David Scott Diffrient with David Lavery

Edición: 1st ed

Editorial: Syracuse Syracuse University Press 2010

Descripción física: xxxvi, 380 p.

Tipo Audiovisual: Gilmore girls (Television program)

Mención de serie: Television and popular culture

Bibliografía: Bibliografía e índices. Race, class, education, profession. Escaping from Korea: cultural authenticity and Asian American identities in Gilmore girls / Hye Seung Chung -- "The thing that reads a lot": bibliophilia, college life, and literary culture in Gilmore girls / Anna Viola Sborgi -- Stars hollow, Chilton, and the politics of education in Gilmore girls / Matthew C. Nelson -- "You don't got it": becoming a journalist in Gilmore girls / Angel Castanos Martinez, Amor Munoz Becares, and Sarah Caitlin Lavery -- Food, addiction, gender, sexuality. Pass the Pop-Tarts: the Gilmore girls' perpetual hunger / Susannah B. Mintz and Leah E. Mintz -- "Nigella's deep-frying a Snickers bar!": addiction as a social construct in Gilmore girls / Joyce Goggin -- Java junkies versus balcony buddies: Gilmore girls, "shipping," and contemporary sexuality / A. Rochelle Mabry -- "But Luke and Lorelai belong together!": relationships, social control, and Gilmore girls / Jimmie Manning ---What a girl wants: men and masculinity in Gilmore girls / Laura Nathan Contenido: Introduction: "you're about to be Gilmored" / David Scott Diffrient -- Authorship, genre, literacy, televisuality. "Impossible girl": Amy Sherman-Palladino and television creativity / David Lavery -- Branding the family drama: genre formations and critical perspectives on Gilmore girls / Amanda R. Keeler -- Your guide to the girls: Gilmore-isms, cultural capital, and a different kind of quality TV / Justin Owen Rawlins -- TV "dramedy" and the double-sided "liturgy" of Gilmore Girls / Giada Da Ros -- Real and imagined communities (in town and online). The gift of Gilmore girls' gab: fan podcasts and the task of "talking back" to TV / David Scott Diffrient -- "I will try harder to merge the worlds": expanding narrative and navigating spaces in Gilmore girls / Radha O'Meara --

"You've always been the head pilgrim girl": stars hollow as the embodiment of the American dream / Alyson R.
Buckman -- Town meetings of the imagination: Gilmore girls and Northern exposure / Jane Feuer ---

ISBN: 0815632398 cloth alk. paper) 9780815632399 cloth alk. paper) 9780815650690 e-book)

Autores: Diffrient, David Scott (1972-) Lavery, David (1949-)

Punto acceso adicional serie-Título: Television and popular culture

Baratz Innovación Documental

- Gran Vía, 59 28013 Madrid
- (+34) 91 456 03 60
- informa@baratz.es